→ UniCredit Foundation

Our mission: contributing to the development of our communities

UniCredit Foundation is a corporate Foundation that was established in 2003 in order to contribute to the development of solidarity and philanthropy in the communities and territories where UniCredit operates, primarily in the regions where UniCredit is present (17 countries including Europe and Central Asia). Through the transfer of financial resources and the typical management skills of a company, UniCredit Foundation supports projects of significant social impact and innovation, implemented by local non-profit organizations.

The main areas of intervention are:

Centre of philanthropic competence

UniCredit Foundation is a competence center for UniCredit on issues of philanthropy and the third sector. Particularly the Foundation offers advice and organizes activities for the Group companies and their customers.

Supporting social inclusion

UniCredit Foundation works through the promotion of social cohesion processes in the territories and through social entrepreneurship, considered a capable tool for producing and delivering goods and services for social utility.

Over the last two years several projects were initiated in Austria, Bulgaria, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Czech Republic, Estonia, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Latvia, Poland, Romania, Serbia, Slovakia, Slovenia, Ukraine.

Initiative for UniCredit employees

UniCredit Foundation promotes a culture of volunteering and giving to the community through the dedicated efforts of all the employees, encouraging their participation in social activities and projects. Since 2003, UniCredit Foundation has been organizing an annual Gift Matching Program opened to all the employees of UniCredit (about 160,000 people). Through this program, the Foundation integrates the donations made by groups of employees of UniCredit in favor of non-profit organizations. In 2011 a new initiative called “Your Choice, Your Project” was launched, a program which, through a voting process, involves employees in the direct selection of projects to be supported in their own country.

A letter to the colleagues

– by Federico Ghizzoni

CEO UniCredit

Dear colleagues, in 2013, we held our eleventh annual Gift Matching Program. In recent years, I have noticed a benefit that springs from the initiative: the strong sense of participation it fosters among UniCredit colleagues.

I believe this personal commitment to participation is what makes the program so special. It increases inclusiveness and respect for diversity, while promoting precisely the sense of social support that is part of our identity as a bank. This is driven by the powerful entrepreneurial character of our people, who use the same proactive approach to build solid relationships between our bank and the territories in which we live and work.

Through the Gift Matching Program and other UniCredit Foundation initiatives, we are directly meeting the additional needs of communities in 17 European countries. It is our responsibility to encourage the business sector to compliment the efforts of civil society, and such assistance is all the more important when economic resources are scarce.

The act of giving, however, is never one-sided. The Gift Matching Program provides an opportunity for all UniCredit employees to enrich their lives and raise their awareness of important issues, as well as an opportunity for our communities to benefit from our shared interest in promoting economic and cultural development.

I thank all of you who actively contribute to the common good by participating in this program. It helps make us into the kind of people who care about improving our society.

Our commitment

– by Maurizio Carrara

Chairman UniCredit Foundation

A real driving force to improve the well-being of the community. If I had to explain the Gift Matching Program to someone who knows nothing about it, this is how I would describe it. A force that has spread beyond the confines of Italy to include the involvement of an ever-growing number of employees in the foreign branches. The program has, in fact, acquired a continental dimension that perfectly mirrors the international one of UniCredit.

Some figures. In 2013, in its eleventh edition, the Gift Matching Program registered over 2 million euros of donations given by employees (and as much again was matched by the Foundation) destined to support 437 projects. If the projects supported by Italian employees were 227, those of colleagues in our branches abroad totalled 210. This result has come about because of a steady growth over the years. These figures make the Gift Matching Program unique throughout the whole of Europe.

Participation in the program, now well known within UniCredit thanks to the constant work of the coordinators, goes beyond the call of professional duty. And perhaps its strength lies in this. The coordinators are the lifeblood of the mechanism; they take on the job of involving a group of colleagues in a given solidarity project. It is their task to update the donor employees (there have been over 14 thousand of them in these past years) on the progress of their chosen initiative. This requires constancy and dedication over time and demonstrates a strong personal involvement.

The history of the Gift Matching Program and this year's figures attest to a strong participation that has resisted the cruel economic crisis within which the GMP inevitably operates. Faced with difficulties, individuals did not shy away from acts of solidarity, putting them off in expectation of better days. On the contrary, the figures show that the program has functioned as a driving force for a continual and informed commitment on the part of UniCredit people, for whom often more than just a solidarity program, it represents a life experience.

→ Gift Matching Program, the multiplier of donations that creates value both for the bank and the communities

In 2013 the Gift Matching Program has reached its eleventh edition. It is one of the Foundation's longest running solidarity programs. The mechanism behind the initiative is such that the Foundation matches - thereby doubling - the donations that UniCredit employees give to non-profit organisations that they themselves have chosen.

During the first ten years of the GMP's life-span almost 36 million euros were donated to support nearly 4,000 projects across Europe. In 2013 alone 14,583 employees participated in the program raising a total of over 2 million euros - which were then matched by the Foundation - destined to support 437 projects.

These figures are significant and have been achieved thanks to the dedication of the coordinators and their ability in mobilizing their colleagues. It is, in fact, the coordinators who take on the responsibility of involving their coworkers in a good cause. It is then also up to the coordinators to keep their donor-colleagues up to date with the stages of progress of their chosen initiative. This activity, which often spans several years, is a sign of personal commitment which in turn reflects the fact that coordinators are aware of the importance of their role, both as citizens and as employees of an organisation conscientious with regard to its social responsibility.

In the pages that follow, before the case by case overview of all the projects that have been supported, the reader will find a series of interviews with some of the most active coordinators of the UniCredit Foundation's international network. The overall impression one gets by reading them is that the GMP, as well as having an impact on the communities it benefits, also has a strong impact on the professional and personal lives of those it involves.

→ The word to the coordinators: this is how the GMP is changing our way of working and thinking

The quotes you can read on this and the two following pages are part of the interviews given by some of the most active coordinators in Italy and abroad. The interviews show different approaches and sensitivities. But if we had to identify the common thread that gathers together these interviews, that would be pride. The pride of belonging not only to a Bank that cares about social issues but also to a community which goes beyond the work environment.

«From experience you can learn that, at times, you can do a lot with very little and that we are better than we think. This program gives us the opportunity to show all this»

→ Camelia Ioana Dicu

33 years old, Romania

«The things that makes a difference is the internal communication plan. We have to use all the tools we have, from intranet to the house organ: videos are usually very much appreciated»

→ Ivona Filej Ribarić

31 years old, Croatia

«Volunteering has always been my thing: our project promotes social entrepreneurship in Addis Abeba and Ethiopia. The thing that has impressed me the most? My coworkers' passion»

→ Renato De Toffoli

54 years old, Italy

«I've been doing voluntary work since I was 14 years old. I began with Salesian workers to engage with missions and projects in Africa. My dream? To be healthy and strong to continue to learn to be involved in the non profit world»

→ Teresa Gamberini 51 years old, Italy

«It's very important that the coworkers are kept informed on the real impact of their donations»

→ Jana Voberová
35 years old, Slovakia

«I have two small children. I often talk to them about the projects we support»

→ Jasna Uzelac Braunovic
39 years old, Serbia

«With our project we give about 800 hot meals a day to immigrants in Palermo and the surrounding areas»

→ Marisa Di Giovanni
49 years old, Italy

«The GMP has taught me that together not only we can achieve the goals related to our business but that we can also contribute to the growth of our community and of our territory»

→ Amina Maglajlija
25 years old, Bosnia and Herzegovina

«The GMP has become a topic of discussion both with my family and with my friends, especially in the last days of the fundraising campaign»

→ Klaus-Peter Storme
42 years old, Germany

«Immediate, useful, easy, this is how I would define the GMP»

→ Giuseppe Stefano Leone
53 years old, Italy

«Every year I contact thousands of coworkers: in a moment when the ongoing economic crisis threatens to push us to closing ourselves up and becoming indifferent to others, sharing moments of solidarity and help children in need can offer us the opportunity to rediscover those values whose lack, has probably been among the causes of the economic crisis, in the first place»

→ Michele Betetto
47 years old, Italy

«Being part of the GMP has provided me with the awareness that even a mustard seed can grow into a big tree. We are too often led to think that there is nothing we can do to improve things, we expect everything to come down to us from above»

→ Iolanda Galasso
53 years old, Italy

«GMP, which means, Grand, Magic, Productive»

→ Can Ozyurt
47 years old, Turkey

«UniCredit's attention towards social issues and the ones in need has been something unexpected. It's something you don't expect from a bank. I'm proud to be part of it»

→ Gianni Giletti
56 years old, Italy

→ GMP in figures

The employees choose the social projects to support, while the coordinators inform them on the progress of those projects and are in charge of fundraising. Once they close the private fundraising campaign, UniCredit Foundation matches the employees' donations. In this way the GMP becomes a real solidarity multiplier.

UniCredit outlines the road of a solidarity that keeps up with the times

– by Giuseppe Frangi

Executive editor Vita magazine

UniCredit Foundation's Gift Matching Program has grown over the years, widening its borders to include the entire UniCredit universe to the point where it has become an important element in defining the identity of what is one of the most important European banking groups. It is this continental aspect that has added a more interesting and vital dimension to the Gift Matching Program.

This worldwide network of people involved in the same program should be seen as a contribution to the building of a shared vision that nowadays it would otherwise be difficult to create. Solidarity practised in a modern way to respond to the thousands of new needs of our times has in fact brought about the emergence of a cultural and historical outcome that in primis has guaranteed coexistence and progress (but not only) to our continent. An outcome that would be wrong to see as secondary to the large-scale trends of history because, on the contrary, it has always left a deep mark in history. One only has to look at how the first welfare institutions were established in Europe originating from a deep-seated moral belief that the production of wealth should, as much as possible, bring benefits to the community as a whole. In the present day, the fact that solidarity is engendered within a large financial institution such as UniCredit revives that same dynamic of goodwill.

That in 2013 the Gift Matching Program has existed for eleven years despite having gone through, for much of that time, one of the worst financial crises the western world has ever had to face is another important element that must give rise to some reflection: it is not true that individuals, faced with the difficulties of the financial crisis, react by turning inwards and put off acts of solidarity to better times. On the contrary, mechanisms of solidarity are unleashed for reasons that are sociologically difficult to explain but that can be explained by the "goodness factor" that is at the heart of human nature. To foster and support this factor with initiatives such as the Gift Matching Program is worthy of praise.

If we can find our way out of the crisis, it will be thanks to a new aptitude for sharing and for co-responsibility that cannot exclude anyone.
